(City of South Fulton, GA – June 10, 2020) – City of South Fulton Mayor William “Bill” Edwards is accepting former President Barack Obama's challenge to address the city’s police department’s use of force policy.

The Mayors Pledge focuses on steps cities can take to make reforms that stop unnecessary use of deadly force by law enforcement. Edwards, Police Chief Keith Meadows and City Manager Odie Donald II will address the issue and get feedback from citizens about the city’s policy.

“I am up for the challenge and committed to taking action,” said Mayor Edwards. “It is imperative that we examine our use of force policies with the community and have transparent conversations about policing. This town hall will do just that.”

The virtual town hall will take place on Monday, June 22, at 6 p.m. on the city’s YouTube channel.
